Client Rights

You are entitled to receive information from your therapist about the methods of therapy, the techniques used, the duration of your therapy (if known), and the fee structure. Please see the Consent for Treatment section for more information about fee structure.

You can seek a second opinion from another therapist or terminate therapy at any time.

In a professional relationship, sexual intimacy is never appropriate and should be reported to the board that licenses, registers, or certifies the licensee, registrant, or certificate holder.

Generally speaking, the information provided by and to the client during therapy sessions is legally confidential and cannot be released without the client’s consent. There are several exceptions to confidentiality which include:

1. Your therapist is required to report any suspected incident of child or elder abuse or neglect to law enforcement.
2. Your therapist is required to report any threat of imminent physical harm by a client to law enforcement and to the person(s) threatened.
3. Your therapist is required to initiate a mental health evaluation of a client who is imminently dangerous to self or to others, or who is gravely disabled, as a result of a mental disorder.
4. Your therapist is required to report any suspected threat to national security to federal officials.

5. I may be required by Court Order to disclose treatment information and other exceptions as noted in the HIPAA Notice of Privacy Rights you were provided as well as exceptions in Colorado and Federal law. If a legal exception arises during therapy, if feasible, you will be informed accordingly. 6. Under Colorado law, CRS 14-10-123.8, parents have the right to access mental health treatment information concerning their minor children, unless the court has restricted access to such information. If you request treatment information from your provider, they may provide you with a treatment summary, in compliance with Colorado law and HIPAA standards.

Disclosure Regarding Divorce and Custody Litigation

By signing this document, you agree to not subpoena me to court for testimony or for disclosure of treatment information in such litigation; you also agree not to request that I write any reports to the court or to your attorney, making recommendations concerning custody. The court can appoint professionals, who have no prior relationship with family members, to conduct an investigation or evaluation and to make recommendations to the court concerning parental responsibilities or parenting time in the best interest of the family’s children.

You have the right to ask and learn about the techniques and approaches offered by your clinician. You are also entitled to a second opinion. Please ask your clinician if you would like referral information to seek a second opinion. You may also terminate treatment at any time without penalty, as participation in treatment is voluntary.
